Profile

Kim Trask
Whitworth University, USA

Massey's communication program stood out to me because it gave me the opportunity to complete the electives for my degree as well as gain internship credit. The best part of this internship was the network and relationships I gained in the process. I always welcomed the escape from my "student life" routine to come to work and be productive and have the chance to enjoy conversation with other adults about things other than homework. Having Kiwi co-workers around the office was also helpful in learning more about New Zealand.

Auckland - City of Sails

Ranked in Lonely Planet's Top 10 Best in Travel destinations, Auckland is New Zealand's largest and most multicultural city. Auckland is surrounded by water and is known as the City of Sails because of the hundreds of yachts that sail on the three harbours the 1.6 million Aucklanders can access.

Within half an hour of the city centre are two mountain ranges, numerous beaches, 48 volcanic cones, and more than 50 islands. As the main gateway to New Zealand, Auckland airport has direct flights to more than 33 cities worldwide, including those in the Pacific Islands, Asia, and the Americas.

Profile

Jamie Musbach
University of Wisconsin, Eau Claire, USA

I was expecting to like NZ, but I wasn't expecting to fall in love with it. Let's just say that there was nothing that disappointed me. Swimming with wild Dusky dolphins in Kaikoura, kayaking in Milford Sound, bungee jumping in Queenstown, riding horses on the beach in Auckland, hiking the Tongariro Crossing, they all rocked. I also liked the professors at Massey. They are super laid back, understanding, and helpful.

Manawatū Campus

Located in Palmerston North, the Manawatū campus reflects its history as the original campus, with lovely heritage buildings in a park-like setting. Massey Manawatū offers more than 6,000 students the widest range of subjects within the sciences, health, business, humanities, and social sciences.

Profile

Martyn Hann
University of Exeter, England

I met some amazing people, both the Kiwis I met in class and from travelling, as well as all the people from around the world who I lived with in the Massey halls of residence. Studying in Palmerston North turned out to be a lot more relaxed than back at home in England, with smaller classes leading to a more personal relationship with lecturers.

Palmerston North - Student City

Palmerston North has the lowest cost of living of any university city in the entire country. It is a student city with 40% of its population engaged in tertiary study across multiple institutions. Palmerston North is New Zealand's eighth largest city with about 89,000 inhabitants.

The city has grown with Massey University and offers energetic arts, entertainment, and sports scenes while maintaining the friendly warmth of heartland New Zealand. Cafés, restaurants serving global cuisines, and outdoor adventure stores ring the compact downtown square. The city is very walkable and the extensive network of buses and bike lanes make it easy to get around.

The region is also home to Linton Military Camp, Royal New Zealand Air Force Base Ohakea, several leading research institutes, Toyota New Zealand's headquarters, and New Zealand's multinational dairy company, Fonterra.

Students have easy access to the great outdoors. Massey is surrounded by spectacular scenery, stretching from the magnificent Tararua and Ruahine Ranges to the coastal plains and local beaches. The region is well connected by buses, trains, and the Palmerston airport. Wellington, the central plateau ski-fields, and the beaches and wineries of Hawke's Bay are all just a two-hour drive away.

This campus offers internationally recognised programmes in business enterprise, communication, fashion, design, textiles, sport and exercise science, fine arts, and journalism.

Profile

Nadja Doth
University of Applied Sciences, Germany

I chose Wellington for its compactness, because I didn't want to live in a large city. I simply loved the beaches, sea views and the picturesque bays around Wellington.

The support I received since arriving at Massey was great, the airport pickup service was convenient and took me straight to my university apartment.
